Is Poland moving towards battery energy storage systems (BESS)? As expected, Poland's latest capacity market auctions have highlighted a significant shift towards the battery energy storage systems (BESS) beside the fact that the de-rating factor has been significantly decreased. Is Poland a key player in Europe's energy storage sector? Poland is emerging as a significant player in Europe's energy storage sector. The recent capacity market auctions in December highlighted a substantial shift towards BESS, with approximately 2.5 GW secured by new generation capacity market units, predominantly Li-ion energy storage projects. How many MW rated energy storage systems are there in Poland? The capacity obligations for these projects ranged from 1.2 MW to 153 MW rated power, with an average capacity of around 30 MW. The decision to reduce the de-rating factor for energy storage systems in the last capacity market auction in Poland from 95 percent to 61 percent did not prove detrimental to the market. What does ENEX tell us about energy storage in Poland? The insights from Enex reinforce that BESS is no longer an emerging trend--it's a critical part of Poland's energy transition. With favorable market reforms and growing investment interest, the country is well-positioned to capitalize on energy storage innovations. What will Poland's energy landscape look like in 2025? Jacek Zarzycki, Business Development Manager at Eaton, highlights five key areas shaping Poland's energy landscape in 2025. 1. Energy Price Caps Extended For individual consumers, the energy price cap will remain in place until September 30, 2025, limiting electricity costs to a maximum of 500 PLN/MWh (plus excise tax and VAT). Why is EV charging exclusion a problem in Poland? This exclusion raises concerns about the program's budget utilization and the broader development of electromobility in Poland. Another pressing issue is the expansion of EV charging infrastructure, which remains insufficient to meet the rising demand from an increasing number of electric vehicles entering the market.
